

The role of the key person

Young children need to form a secure attachment to key person when they join the setting to feel safe, happy, and eager to participate and learn.

The key person role

- A key person builds an on-going relationship with the child and his/her parents and is committed to that child's well-being while in the setting.
- Every child that attends is allocated a key person before they begin settling in - it is not the responsibility of the child to choose their own key person.
- A buddy key person is also identified for each child so that they can fulfil the role in the absence of the main key person.
- The key person conducts the progress check at age two for their key children.
- The role is fully explained to parents on induction.
- The key person is central to settling a child into the setting. The setting manager and key person explain the need for a settling in process and agree a plan with the parents.

Parents

- Key persons are the first point of contact for parents with regard to matters concerning their child and any concerns parents may have are addressed with the key person in the first instance.
- Key persons support parents in their role as the child's first and most enduring educators.
- The key person is responsible for the child's developmental records, completing the progress check at age two, and for sharing information about progress with the child's parents.

Learning and development

- The key person helps to ensure that every child's learning and care is tailored to meet their individual needs. This is achieved through regular observation and assessment of children, using information gathered about their achievements, interests and learning styles to plan for each individual child's learning and development.
- If a child's progress in any of the prime areas gives cause for concern, the key person must discuss this with the setting manager or SENDCO and the child's parents.

Buddy key person

- The role of the buddy key person is to step in when the main key person is absent or unavailable to provide a stable and consistent care relationship for the child.
- The buddy key person is identified when the child starts but is not introduced to the child until an attachment is beginning to form with the key person.
- The buddy key person gradually forms a relationship with the child until the child is happy to be cared for by this person.
- The buddy key person shares information with parents in the key person's absence and makes notes in the child's records where appropriate.
- The buddy key person ensures information is shared with the key person.

Safeguarding children

- The key person has a responsibility towards their key children to report any concern about their development, welfare or child protection matter to the setting manager and to follow the procedures in this respect.
- Regular supervision with the setting manager provides further opportunities to discuss the progress and welfare of key children.
- The buddy key person has a duty likewise.
